Barry galloped 70 yards or so, but one of the officials claimed he spotted Barry on the wrong side of the side-line early in the run, and the ball was brought back. Punchard and Chelmsford tied, 7 to 7.

WHAT DO YOU THINK . . . ARE THE CAUSES FOR THE HIGHEST FOOD PRICES IN ALL OUR HISTORY?

With every budget bursting its seams over the roast beef that wasn't there, and grain prices soaring with government talk of European aid, it behooves us to shed a little light on the food situation.

Donald J. O'Connor, co-owner of the Andover Lunch: "The demand for more and better food is making prices mount, I think. The high wages mean more people can afford better quality and more of it, and as a result, the demand exceeds the supply. It's just a vicious circle. If everybody stopped buying meat for a week, the price of meat would soon drop."

Norman Morgan of Lowell road, full-scale poultryman and on the board of the Essex County Poultryman's Association: "The government is at fault for the high prices, in my opinion. They bid on everything in sight for export, which means that the buyers in the wholesale grain market have to compete against them, and it isn't done in an orderly fashion. The result is that grain goes sky-high."

"Here in New England labor and feed prices are both up 100%, and the price of the egg has not advanced in proportion, due mostly to the fact that the best breeding work in the country has been carried on right here in Massachusetts with increased production as a result. Eggs are the best food bet on the market today."

Sally Bodwell of Fieldstones, food economist and dietitian: "We've only changed our prices once since we opened in June, to the extent that our $1.85 supper increased fifteen cents. Food costs in that time have increased 25%. I suppose it's just supply and demand that keeps costs up. I know when the hotels and restaurants refused to buy rib roast of beef because of the ridiculous prices, they dropped in three days."

"We've got a number of reservations for Thanksgiving dinner, but we can't say yet how much it will be, because every marketman has a different story on turkeys; some say they'll be plentiful and about the same price as today, others that they will be scarce, and more expensive. I guess the answer is, nobody knows."

William H. Golden, market gardener, owner of the Golden Gardens on North Main street: "There's been nothing high about vegetable prices until recently. The first four months of this season we were ready to throw in the towel, with a supply that more than satisfied the demand. We've left 500 bushels of beets in the ground, 400 bushels of tomatoes unpicked, because we couldn't get enough for them to make it worthwhile. Contrary to common public opinion the farmers have been in the red up to the last few weeks, when the fall vegetables have been scarce, and have picked up as a result."

"Frozen foods, canned and dehydrated products are playing havoc with the market gardener. 1943 was the big year, when everyone stayed home, and canned and cooked a decent meal. Fresh

By the Associated Press
"Grain prices soared the limit on all North American exchanges Monday as President Truman moved to determine whether to call a special session of Congress to deal with European aid" — and small town folks tried to decide whether to have hamburger again tonight.

vegetables this past summer were a glut on the market."

J. McIntosh, grocery manager of the local First National store on Main street: "There's too much loose money lying around, in my opinion. The chain of events will eventually lead to another depression, and when people can't afford to pay the prices, and our food supply remains high, prices will automatically come down."

"Foreign countries can't afford to buy our food because of the cost, and the demand in this country is so great that prices keep mounting."

Martha, owner of the Shaw-sheen Market: "Everyone blames the little butcher on the corner, but we're making less today than we ever have. You can't mark up something that's already so high that people just won't buy. It goes back to the wholesaler, and from him to the shipper, then to the slaughterer — everyone has to make more because the man before him is making more. Eat macaroni and cheese instead of meat? Macaroni's climbing, and cheese went up just this morning!"

Sidney P. White, prominent local farmer, owner of the Wild Rose Farm, and chairman of the Board of Public Works: "In analyzing the high cost of living, it seems to me to be due primarily to two things: greed and selfishness. Looking at it from a broad angle, I feel that it is due to the countless demands of labor, which is bound to reflect back to the farm."

"The Wall Street Stock Exchange is doing its part in controlling the grain market in order that it may make money at the expense of the American people. Another factor, in my opinion, is government interference, which has forced the farmer to curtail production and speculation, especially on the part of the grain brokers, which gives me the feeling that they had rather have a fat pocket-book than a country of peace and plenty. Let's hope for the good of the American people that the time will never come when the farmer demands a 40-hour week. How high would costs go if the farmer and his help worked for 40 hours, and finished the week with a second shift?"

Merrimack College Open for Inspection

The new school building in which classes have been conducted at Merrimack College since this Wednesday, October 1, will be open to the public for inspection on the afternoon of Sunday, October 12, it was announced recently. Hours for inspection are from 1 to 5 p. m. It had been originally intended to have the inspection on Sunday, October 5, but the large numbers expected to attend the Holy Name convention in Boston at that time necessitated a change in the date.

The one-story building is made of cinder blocks in the shape of an E, and contains seven classrooms and two laboratories in addition to the other rooms required for a complete layout.

More than one hundred and sixty students, of whom roughly half are veterans, are currently pursuing studies in the new school. Lawrence has sent more students to the institution than any other city, but practically the whole Merrimack Valley is represented. In his first season as coach of Andover's soccer team, Frank Di Clemente has divided his 40-man squad into two equal groups of varsity and junior varsity squads. This is the first year that Phillips Academy has put a junior varsity team on the field.

The varsity squad has a rather international touch, with players from widely separated areas: L. A. French from Mexico, a veteran center forward; Walter Lee from China, wing; John Watts, English exchange student, halfback; Jan Ehrnberg, Swedish exchange student, center halfback; Chakkap-hak, from Siam, center forward. Captain Paul Miller of Meridan, Conn., a two-year veteran, will play at inside forward, and Joe Keener of Margate, N. J. and Jim Stockwell of Hamilton are leading contenders for the goal spot.

The opening game of the season will be Saturday, Oct. 4, at Andover against New England College, Henniker, N. H.

World Wide Communion

Sunday, October 5, 1947

This is the eighth year for the observance of World Wide Communion. The date this year is October fifth. In these days when the world is still filled with confusion and suffering, there is a real need for Christians everywhere to make much of this significant day. The coming together of Christians about the Lord's Table on the same day will be an expression of unity which all believers have in Christ. It will be a witness in a broken world, to an unbroken fellowship of Christians everywhere.

The observance of the Holy Communion on October 5th will begin in New Zealand. The worship services in the churches there begin at 10:30 in the morning. When it is 10:30 in New Zealand, it is six o'clock on Saturday evening in New York (E. S. T.). It is three o'clock Saturday afternoon in Los Angeles. A time clock has been worked out which shows the time in about fifteen centers around the world, when it is 10:30 on Sunday morning in New Zealand. By the aid of this clock, one is able to follow the World Wide Communion observance during the entire twenty-four hours.

The World Wide Communion observance is being co-sponsored by the Councils of Churches in many lands; by numerous denominations around the world; by national and international missionary organizations of the churches. There is no question but that the observance and the attendance this year will be wider and greater than ever before.

This day can be made the occasion for a re-dedication of life to the work of Christ and His church. When could there be a more appropriate time for such a re-dedication? The summer is ended, vacations are over and the more active days of the church are at hand. Where could there be a more appropriate place for such a re-dedication? The Communion Table speaks to us of a cross and the cross calls us to a dedication of life. Every congregation should make careful plans for the day, and think in terms not of limitations but of possibilities.

One of the World Wide Communion objectives is that each local congregation of every evangelical denomination around the globe will seek to have every member present at its own Communion Table. Those members of a local congregation who are not able to attend because of illness or old age, should have the Holy Communion taken to them. No one should be overlooked.

The World Wide Communion observance does not contemplate union Communion services, but rather that each local congregation shall seek to have its own resident members present at its own Communion Table. Each Congregation will be conscious of its spiritual oneness in Christ with all other Christians in the same community and around the world.

(Reprint from the Department of Evangelism, Federal Council of Churches of Christ).

Gordon D. Dewart, son of Mrs. Emma D. Trott of 8 Stonehedge road, a graduate of Cambridge school, is enrolled at Brown University in the freshman class.

Human Angle in Education Stress by League Speaker

"How Do You Like the Personnel Who Work With Your Children?" will be the subject which Dana Cotton, director of placement at Harvard Graduate School, will develop on Monday, October 6, at the Memorial Hall Library, in the second of a series of educational lectures and forums sponsored by the library and the Andover League of Women Voters.

Mr. Cotton, who comes very highly recommended, will throw a light on the human angle in education, where last Monday's speaker, Harold Gores of the Newton school department, was concerned with the actual desk and book angle.

There will be an opportunity this Monday for persons who did not take advantage of the question period last week, to make any queries relating to last week's subject.

The representation at the first lecture of the series showed a preponderance of people connected with the educational system in Andover, and it is the earnest hope of the sponsors that the parents and taxpayers of the community will evince an equal interest at the succeeding lectures.

Mr. Gores covered a wide range both during his lecture, which was extremely interesting and non-pedantic, and the question period.

He pointed out a number of new channels into which the educational system might well go, and some from which we might with advantage withdraw. For example, he cited the popular method of specialization and choice of electives at an early age, which he felt might well be postponed until at least the eleventh grade, when a good solid foundation in general subjects would more nearly enable the student to make a success of his choice.

Many parents will fall in heartily with Mr. Gores' dissertation on the age at which arithmetic should be started in the public schools, in which he pointed out the fact that until the child had a practical use for complicated arithmetic, it might be of greater value to stress a broader reading-readiness program, from which the child could develop practically.

The beginning school age is determined by the fact that our school system requires reading in the first grade, according to Mr.
Gores, and this age has to conform with the mental development of the child, and his ability to perform what is expected of him.

Dreaded Dutch Elm Disease Threatens Andover's Trees

According to a notice posted by the town tree warden, G. R. Abbott, the dreaded Dutch Elm disease has come to Andover. The infected tree, situated on Burnham road, was cut down and burned on Friday, following the report received from the Dutch Elm Disease Laboratory in Amherst the previous day.

This is the first instance of the disease found north of Boston, where 15 infected trees have been reported to date. Experiences has shown that once the disease has been discovered in an area, the following year finds a recurrence.

The tree warden is continually sending specimens to the laboratory in Amherst, since this is the only sure way to ascertain the presence of the disease, but it is very possible that every one of Andover's beautiful elms will be wiped out within a few years unless steps are taken to battle this horrible infection.

The state has taken no measure to protect its trees, other than sponsoring some scouting activities to ascertain its presence, and supporting the Amherst laboratory, leaving the fight to the individual towns and cities of the commonwealth.

The city of Boston has already appropriated $10,000 to aid in the battle against this scourge, and wherever it has appeared, other towns have followed suit.

The disease, which chokes the circulation of sap in the tree, is spread from a diseased elm tree to a healthy one by the European elm bark beetle. Methods of control used at present are:

1. Remove and burn all infected trees.

2. Prune all dead and weak wood from healthy elm trees, remove the bark from all elm logs or spray the logs with the bark on with D.D.T. dissolved in oil. These measures prevent the elm bark beetle from finding breeding places.

3. Feed the elm trees for better growth and health.

4. Spray the elm trees 3 to 4 times during the spring and summer with D.D.T. to control the elm bark beetle which feeds for a short time on the tender twigs of the elm before seeking entrance into the bark to complete its life cycle.

Because of high power electric wires and telephone cable serving the public along the streets the removal of large diseased elm trees would be dangerous and costly, but this expense will have to be faced, as well as the loss of countless beautiful trees unless steps are taken to fight this menace.

Common Household Articles Are Incorporated in Modern Theme

Boston department stores have cooperated with the Addison Gallery at Phillips Academy for the past few weeks in an exhibition of household articles of all kinds and furniture in the modern manner, entitled GOOD DESIGN IS YOUR BUSINESS. The exhibition at the Academy now in its last week, shows the influence of present-day designers on the commonest of household articles as well as upon the most advanced modern furniture.

That beauty of design is not incompatible with utility is the theory on which present-day designers of household articles operate.

The exhibit is devoted exclusively to household articles, ranging from tip-toe electric irons to magnesium wheelbarrows of feather-weight lightness.

The collection is a traveling exhibit from the Albright galleries in Buffalo, N.Y. It has been supplemented with various articles from this section of the country.

Bartlett H. Hayes, director of the Addison gallery, says that, as far as possible, he has tried to find out where the articles on display may be obtained in this area for the information of visitors to the gallery.

A ballot box has been placed at the exhibition, so that visitors can record their suggestions, which will be forwarded to the manufacturers. The last appearance of the show will be Sunday, October 5, when the Gallery will be open from 2:30 to 5. Admission is free.

THIS SOBER TOWN . . .

STORY WITHOUT INTEREST

I must have been one of the shortest-term loans in the history of the Andover Savings Bank, if the story we got somewhat second-hand the other night is true.

He was just a little girl, bent on an important mission at Rod Hill's hardware store. She saw what she wanted, and she saw the price: 15c—but in her hand there was nothing but a dime. For a minute, only a minute, she pondered. Then briskly her little legs walked out of the store, and in no time at all a teller at the Savings Bank was looking through his cage at an eager little face.

"May I have a nickel, please?"

The teller looked a bit perplexed at the peanut-sized request for peanuts, and possibly figured there'd be only $17,999,999.95 left of the $18,000,000 assets we mentioned in The Townsman Tercentenary Book.

She wasn't one to let any lapse in the conversation go unfilled. "You must have lots of money here."

"Yes, but golly, it's not may money, little girl. I just can't give people money when they ask for it."

"Well, I need five cents. I have to buy something, and I can't go all the way home for it."

You know bank tellers. The institution behind them is terribly austere, and they try to reflect its austerity, but here's a secret—beath it all, they're just as human as you and I. He reached in his own pocket, and pulled out a nickel. She thanked him and hustled her little self out of the bank, spent her 10 cents and her borrowed capital and took her priceless lore.

A little later, the same day the teller looked through his cage again, and saw the same eager face.

A hand reached up, and in it was a nickel. "Here's the five cents. Thank you very much."

If the teller had the nicest sleep in his life that night, you can't blame him much, can you?

EDUCATION MORE IMPORTANT?

Some day we're going to write a long article about our experiences with school newspaper editors, but the following anecdote just won't keep until we get time to write that article.

This week's Phillippian was the first of the school term, and the editors were trying to get out a couple of extra pages with an organization that wasn't completely organized. About 10 minutes of one, a young fellow barged into the office from the shop. We heard him ask the operator for "720" and then ask for Mr. Benedict.

"Sir," a somewhat strident voice said, "I'm down here working on The Phillippian. Is there any chance that I could get out of that IQ test this afternoon?"

There was a pause, a revealingly brief pause, and then the same voice, much less strident, repeated: "Absolutely not. All right, sir. 1:30 you said, sir. Yes, sir."

CAN YOU RHYME "ETERNITY" WITH "US"?

He sat in his booth eating one of Ma Wallace's well-known hamburgers. Every once in a while he'd get up and put another nickel in the music-box, and always the same song came out—Yale's "Whiffenpoof Song."

His face looked intent as he absent-mindedly munched at the hamburger—and after he had spent 55c on Whiffenpoof, we sat down with him while the "Place Where Louie Dwells" rang in our ears.

"You a Yale man?" we asked.

"No. Went to Harvard." Then he got up and put another nickel in.

We didn't get it—a Harvardman's passion for the Whiffenpoof song. And at that moment it didn't bother us enough to try to get any further explanation from him, especially when he didn't seem to be in much of a mood to talk. So we let him put his nickel in the slot, and went back to our own hamburger.

But gosh—when it got up to $1.05, we got worried, and sat down with him again. His face had brightened, and we just looked, expectantly. Halfway through the song, he put his finger up to his lips; we kept silent, wondering whether it was paranoia, schizophrenia, or just plain bats.

Then he jumped up, eyes agleam: "It's time. It's time!"

Wondering just what was the nearest place that carried strait-jackets, we said: "What's time?"

The Harvardman practically stammered. "It's true. They do say 'Lord have mercy on such as we.' It's the object of a preposition; it should be 'on such as us'. Gosh, they don't learn those Yales nothing, do they?"

We heard the other day about the fellow who saw the moving picture, "Mother Wore Tights" with Betty Grable in the tightle role, and then dreamt that night that he lived in The House of Seven Gables.

Girls' Intramural Sports

Captains were elected last Tuesday to lead the various color teams in soccer.

Boys' Varsity Football

Junior High's opener has been called off and another game will be scheduled for Friday.

Junior High's eleven will play its second game of the season on October 10, when the squad will be up against a strong Methuen Central team.

Assembly

Friday's assembly was sponsored by the Student Council with Miss Alice Bisbee as its advisor. The calling forth to the stage of home room officers was done by Robert Markert, newly elected president of the school. After ribbons of the school colors were presented to the home room presidents, Mr. Sherman, Superintendent of Schools, presented the gavel to Robert Markert and a notebook to the Secretary as he swore in the four school officers. Robert delivered a talk to the students emphasizing the fact that this school is a democracy and that in a democracy the people rule. He also stated that their representatives are their agents and that they are there to do what the students vote upon. Mr. Sherman then addressed the students in his usual fine manner, very briefly and to the point, and congratulated them upon their excellent choice of school officers.

Library Notices

The students of Junior High have been doing a lot of reading this month. On September 30, 1947 fifty-four books were taken from the library. During the month of September 305 books have been taken out, 206 fiction, and 99 non-fiction. The school library has been well used this month.

Religious Education

Due to some difficulty with the heating systems all the religious education classes were held at the South Church last week.

Chinese Teacher

Visits Phillips

Dr. C. G. Chen, Principal of Jefferson Academy, Tung Hsien, Peking, China, was a visitor this past week at Phillips Academy, where he was interested in observing modern techniques of classroom teaching. Besides Andover, Dr. Chen has also visited Somerville High School and Newton High School, in this part of New England.

Jefferson Academy is a 6-year school for boys from 12 to 18, who come from 14 Chinese provinces, largely from the rural districts. He was particularly interested in observing Andover's adoption of the "direct method" in teaching French, declaring that he would institute this method at Jefferson Academy in the teaching of English.

Dr. Chen, who arrived in the United States August 19, will spend another month studying American education methods before returning to Peking to begin the winter term.

Locals

Miss Edith Leroy Ambye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthon Ambye of 12 Fletcher street, and Miss Marjorie Weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weeks, 66 Chestnut street, are enrolled as freshmen at Simmons College, Boston. Both are graduates of Pynchard High with the class of '47.

Miss Joan Dorothy Blanchette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Curran, Jr., of Greencourt, South Main street, and Miss Harriet Sears, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Sears, of Rockwell House, have entered House in the Pines, at Norton. The school opened recently for its thirty-seventh year.

Merrimack College Completes Faculty

The faculty for teaching this year's freshman class at the new Augustinian College of the Merrimack Valley is now complete. One addition to the clerical members of the faculty, and four additions to the lay members have been announced.

Spanish will be taught by the Rev. Mariano Arconada, O.S.A., Born in Palencia, Spain, Father Arconada entered the Augustinian Order in the Royal Monastery of El Escorial, Madrid, and was ordained in 1923. He completed his education in Germany and England. Before coming to this country, he had teaching experiences in three Spanish schools: The Royal College of Alfonso XII, El Escorial; St. Augustine's College, Malaga; and the Universidad del Alcala. He is a collaborator of the Augustinian journal "La Ciudad de Dios," published in the Royal Monastery of El Escorial.

Two doctors have been named to teaching positions in Biology, Dr. John J. Lorentz, a graduate of the Catholic University of America, St. John's University, and Georgetown University, will head the department. He taught formerly at St. John's University in New York. His assistant in the laboratory will be Dr. Robert Lambert, a graduate of Boston University.

English will be taught by Mr. John J. Hopkins, a native of Lawrence. Mr. Hopkins is a graduate of Villanova College, who pursued his studies for the Master's degree in Boston University.

Accounting will be taught by Mr. Thomas M. Reilly. Mr. Reilly is a former student at Holy Cross College and a graduate of Columbia University where he received the degree Bachelor of Science in Business Administration.

The college is offering this year four types of course: Liberal Arts, Business Administration, Pre-Medical or Pre-Dental and Pre-Legal. The following subjects are to be taught during the academic year of 1947-1948.

Accounting, General Biology, General Chemistry, Principles of Economics, English Composition, Elementary German, Modern European History, Latin Composition and Readings, College Algebra and Trigonometry, Logic and Epistemology, Social Principles of Religion, Elementary and Intermediate Spanish. Only freshmen students are being accepted this year. Another class is to be added each year, so that the first commencement will be in June 1951. Next year a course leading to the degree Bachelor of Science in Chemistry is to be added. In preparation for such work, a new Science Building is to be started in the spring of 1948.

Talks on "Personnel"

Mr. Dana Cotton, director of Placement at Harvard Graduate School of Education will be the speaker at the second meeting in the educational series at the Memorial Hall Library. On Monday evening, October 6th, at 8 o'clock, he will speak on "Personnel", or "How Do You Like the Personnel Who Work With Your Children?"

The meetings are held under the joint sponsorship of the Andover League of Women Voters and the Memorial Hall Library. It is hoped that the people of Andover will take this opportunity to learn more about their school system and bring to these meetings those questions which they feel should be answered by those who know. There will be two more evenings in this series.

Hire the Handicapped Week

The week of Oct. 6 has been set aside as "Hire the Handicapped Week", in which those in the position of putting men and women to work will be asked to give serious consideration to those who must qualify under this title. In almost every community, bearing varying degrees of disability, are those who could and should be holding a place among those who do the work of the world. During the days of World War II, when manpower was utilized in any form, it was proven to industry that here was a valuable source previously left untouched. A Department of Labor survey made by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics disclosed that in the opinion of 450 employers employing 88,600 handicapped workers they were getting better results from physically handicapped persons than from non-handicapped workers. Among other interesting facts that came to light were these: Fifty-one percent of the handicapped workers had better accident records, forty-nine percent had better than average absence records, and fifty-eight percent of the handicapped workers stay at their jobs longer. A new survey, conducted in cooperation with the Veterans Administration, proved that so-called impaired workers, when properly placed, are as good all-round workers as unimpaired employees.

There will be a display of material, some fiction, but mostly fact, at the Memorial Hall Library during the week. Emphasis is laid on the lives of those who have defeated physical and social handicaps, in records put down in their own words. Among the titles suggested are these:

It's How You Take It Caner
On Being a Real Person Fosdick
And Now To Live Again Barton
Dogs Against Darkness Hartwell

New Recordings

Several new recordings have been added to the collection at the Memorial Hall Library, and are ready for circulation. Albums may be borrowed for home listening, just as a book may be borrowed, but for a shorter period. The newly added are as follows: Bach, Suites Two and Three; Grofe, Grand Canyon Suite; Handel, Twelve Concerti Grossi; Haydn, Symphony No. 98 in B Flat; Shostakovich, Symphony No. 9; Handel, Messiah.

Poetry Promoter

The Cleveland Public Library has done its share to make the enjoyment of poetry a living and productive thing. Four years ago they began an experiment, with the Ohio Poetry Society, that would make it possible for those who wrote poetry for pastime or pleasure, (and may be for print) to bring their work before an audience. Once a month there was an evening meeting, sometimes with a speaker, then a general reading and discussion of individual writings. The result is that a surprising number of people have come to light who may have hidden this talent like a vice, but now enjoy the comment and criticism of people like themselves, to whom the loveliness of rhyme and the music of meter is a source of satisfaction. Does the idea appeal to any members of our community? Have you ever felt the surprising thrill of realizing that you have just "spoken a poem" unconsciously? It might have possibilities here in your own library, if there are those who are interested!

New Books

New books ready for circulation at the Library include these titles:
Richer By Asia Taylor

This is an important book! Edmond Taylor, while stationed in India for the Office of Strategic Service used his trained mind to study the psychology of the people in both war and peace capacities. He points out that we must understand the Asiatic man's ways of thought and the principles which govern his life in order to avoid a final World War or to prepare for a true world unity.

Cycles; The Science of Prediction Dewey

This book offers, within scientific limits, a key to some of the rhythms of the future. The book considers cycles in prices of securities, real estate, building activity and many kinds of industrial productions. Here is a key to predicting what may come by examining what has been.

"Secret Missions" Subject At George Washington Hall

There is little doubt that the author of the current best-seller,
"Secret Missions", who will appear here on Friday, Oct. 17th at 8:15
p. m. in George Washington Hall, Phillips Academy, knows the Japanese as few Americans do or ever have. With a background of a quarter of a century of naval intelligence work, Ellis M. Zacharias (retired from the United States Navy in 1946 with the rank of Rear Admiral) was eminently qualified for the important psychological warfare work in which he was engaged during the closing phases of the war.

He studied the Japanese with a keen analytical mind from his first contacts with them as a language student in Tokyo in the early 1920's and came to learn their processes of thinking and their habitual behavior.

His expert knowledge enabled him to forecast—with pinpoint accuracy, as events proved—that the Japanese would open hostilities with an air attack on our fleet without any declaration of war "on a weekend and probably on a Sunday morning" by launching planes from carriers.

In the summer of 1945 the then Captain Zacharias conducted a remarkable one-man radio war against Japan, in the course of which he undertook to clarify unconditional surrender to the enemy.
His highly successful campaign of psychological warfare against the Japanese High Command was epitomized in the words of the Commader-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet, Admiral King, when he congratulated Captain Zacharias on his "good work in making the Japanese see the light and bringing surrender."

Admiral Zacharias has completed over 38 years in the U. S. Naval Service since his entry in the Naval Academy in 1906. He has served in or operated with all types of ships.
During the war he commanded the heavy cruiser Salt Lake City and led his ship on the famous Tokyo-bound bombing trip to "Shangri-La". After a tour of duty as Deputy Director of Naval Intelligence in Washington, D. C., he commanded the battleship New Mexico and engaged in many operations in the Pacific.

Awarded the commendation ribbon for his "bold and effective handling of the Salt Lake City in action", he has also been decorated three times with the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service and was recommended by three war admirals under whom he served for promotion to flag rank, that of Rear Admiral.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Troop 70—Christ Church

The troop met in the parish house on Friday evening, Sept. 26, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Harrison Brown. Visitors at the meeting were Troop Committeemen Rev. John S. Moses, Dino G. Valz and District Commissioner Walter C. Caswell.

Troop 72—Free Church

The first meeting of the Fall was held in the church vestry under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster and Troop Committeeman Merrill F. Burnett. The many friends of Ed Sorrie will be disturbed to learn that because of business reasons the veteran Scoutmaster will be unable to be as active in the troop as he has been for many years. The other troop officers are pitching in and the work of the troop will be carried on by them.

The Scouts met Friday evening in the church vestry with Assistant Scoutmaster David F. Cargell in charge. The troop was congratulated on its fine showing of 25 boys of whom ten were new recruits. The program mainly consisted of the belt game, steal the bacon, cleanup net, and speed.

The troop was also given talks by the committee chairman, Rev. Levering Reynolds, who welcomed the boys and told of the committee's plans for the term, and Mr. Merrill Burnett, district committeeman, who told of the status of the troop and conditions of the district. David MacCord, former junior assistant scoutmaster, also attended and helped out with the evening's program.

The incoming boys were: Roland Sreman, Mike Glazerman, Allan Schwarzenberg, Allan Dodge, Jack Carver, Jack Rose, Allan Dodge, and Donald Nadeau. Any boys desiring to join the troop are urged to come Friday evenings.

Troop 71—Shawsheen P.T.A.

Plans are underway to reorganize patrols so that patrol competition may start. The troop is meeting regularly on Monday evening at 7:15 p. m. Boys who have reached the age of 12, may apply for membership on meeting night.

Troop 75—St. Augustine's

The meeting in St. Augustine's School on Tuesday, Sept. 23 was spent in registering new boys, forming patrols, and in a few spirited Scout games. Adult leaders present were Scoutmaster Justin L. Rex, assistant scoutmaster; William Dolan, and District Commissioner Walter Caswell.

Dance

The Girl Scouts of West Boxford are planning a Halloween Dance on Friday, Oct. 31, from 7:30 to 10:00 p. m. Andover Boy Scout Troops will be invited. There will be refreshments and prizes and Harold Phinney will supply the music. Leader Elinor F. Cole is in charge of arrangements.

District Meeting

The following members of the District Committee met with Scout Executive Harvey H. Bacon and Field Scout Executive Nestor A. Eno, on Thursday evening, Sept. 25; Chairman V. Malcolm Laitinen, Arnold Schofield, Merrill F. Burnett, Walter C. Caswell, Byron H. Smith and Dino G. Valz. The next meeting will be on Thursday evening, Oct. 23, at the Public Library. Each troop and Pack should have one or two representatives present in addition to the regular committee members. A program of activities for the year will be discussed. It was decided to have Dec. 15 as the closing date for the World Friendship Fund and January 31 as the final date for the "Shirts Off Your Back" campaign. Both programs are to assist foreign scouts to get back on their feet.

Troop 73—South Church

Scoutmaster Spaulding Shaw, a World War II veteran, has gone away to college, and the first meeting of the troop on Friday, Sept. 27 was under the guidance of Troop Committee Chairman Rev. Erick Noss and Robert Hutton, former scoutmaster and committeeman. District Commissioner Caswell visited the troop.

Troop 76—Ballardvale

The first meeting of the Fall was held in the Fire House on Thursday evening, Sept. 25. Scoutmaster P. W. Moody, because of business conditions which are pressing, has transferred to the Troop Committee and Neighborhood Commission. Arnold Schofield, who has been assistant scoutmaster of the troop will take over the duties of Scoutmaster.

EDITORIAL . . . Time To Budge on Budget

Remember how burned up we got last March after the annual town meeting, when the finance committee and the school committee passed the taxpayer's buck back and forth, and the Taxpayers' Association was conspicuously in the very silent background?

We'd like to ward off the possibility of editorial apoplexy or hypertension next March, and so we're beginning to recall this situation fairly early. It's not early, really, though, because the trouble in the past has been that everybody started too late. We've seen so many times that hopeless feeling as town meeting approaches, a feeling that it's impossible in the short time at your disposal to get down into the fundamentals of any budget.

Each department is interested in its own department, and you can't blame anybody for that. We elect people to supervise the departments; it's only natural that they would try to get as much for their own departments, and try to present as good a case for their own departments, as possible. That is why we have an official finance committee, whose job is to gather all the budgets together and fit them into the general town picture. That is why we have a Taxpayers' Association, to organize the taxpayers into a single body which will make itself felt at town meeting. But both the finance committee and the Taxpayers' Association directors have to know quite a bit about what they're going to have to talk about, and then they're going to have to have the courage to talk about it at the right time.

It means starting early. It means starting now. The association's annual meeting, according to their by-laws, comes on the second Monday in October, having been moved up from January to allow more time for study of the budgets. We've chatted with some of the directors of the association about this early start; some of them even called up on the phone last March to say that they agreed with the sentiments expressed in our pseudo-blast at their inactivity. They're eager to do their job right, and we certainly hope they succeed.

The finance committee was handicapped at town meeting by the fact that it had been decapitated, its chairman having been elected moderator. This year they have a new member and a new chairman in the person of Howell Stillman, who we think has the necessary budgetary inquisitiveness and the presentation ability to make the finance committee the power that it should be.

But let's start now. Let's not wait until February and March when that feeling of despair will come over us again, a feeling of knowing too little because you started too late.

MUSIC YOUR HOBBY?

The Andover Community Orchestra, a non-profit group organized for the purpose of giving amateur players the opportunity of playing good music under the finest leadership, opens its Fall season on Tuesday night, October 14, in the Punchard High School Auditorium, when any person with an instrument may join the group for a trial evening.

The orchestra meets every Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, and although there is no fixed charge for joining the group, donations are appreciated. A Youth Concert is planned for the early part of December.

Anyone desiring to make friends in music, to polish up a neglected musical talent, may join this active organization, which brings a great deal of enjoyment and pleasure to the people of Andover.

Those reporting on Tuesday evenings are asked to bring a music stand if possible. More information may be had by calling 1455-R evenings.

League Hears Talk On Foreign Problems

Witt John, assistant to the Foreign Editor of the Christian Science Monitor, was the guest speaker at the Fall luncheon meeting of the League of Women Voters, held Tuesday in the Christ Church Parish House.

Mrs. Douglas Dunbar, president of the League, presided. Mrs. Philip Allen, chairman of the committee on Foreign Affairs and wife of Senator Allen, introduced Mr. John.

Mr. John served during the war as a staff officer under Admiral Himitz, and last Spring spent some time at the meeting of the United Nations as a reporter for the Christian Science Monitor. He has particular understanding of the problems facing Western Europe today, and his theme was "Why We Should Back the Marshall Plan."

Mr. John said this hour is one of profound crisis in Europe. This very epoch may well be as sweeping in its far-flung outcome—as decisive for the very future of Western civilization itself—as the most dramatic battles of World War II. Europe is on the edge of disaster. We are familiar with the shattered cities, the homeless and the hungry people. Behind lies the unseen destruction, the human strain and exhaustion, the breaking down of standards, skills lost, investments wiped out, commercial intercourse broken, shortages of raw materials, machinery and man-power. All this has made it impossible to get the economic mechanism in running order.

At the recent meeting of the 16 countries in Paris, a four-year recovery plan was proposed, with aid from America in money, goods and liberal trade policies. They ask three billion dollars as a stabilization fund immediately to prevent the collapse of their currency. Then to start the wheels going, there must be money for machinery and raw materials. In return these countries promise increased production and strong co-operation with one another. Mr. John says without aid Europe appears headed for a complete economic collapse. That would be a great catastrophe and bring other catastrophes in its wake — such as Soviet domination of that entire and prostrate country.

The Marshall plan, which is still on paper, is based on working together, and if successful will rebuild a new and changed Europe. It is Europe's one hope of recovery.

Garden Club Opens Season

The Andover Garden Club will open its 1947-48 season on Tuesday morning, October 7, at 10 o'clock at the Andover Inn, with the president, Mrs. M. Phillips Graham, presiding.

"Have just received my copy of the Andover Tercentenary Book, and, needless to say, I am enjoying it immensely, looking at 'old Andover' — all the familiar scenes of my school days . . .

"I would like, in addition to the original copy, two more of the same type, if you still have them on hand. I want them to send to other members of the family . . .

"Thanking you for your efforts in putting out such a complete story and pictures of the Andover that we all love!"
